

HENBRY HOUSE, 2011 MAIN STREET, FORESTERS FALLS

Like most small-town houses, this unprepossessing structure nevertheless has many fascinating stories to tell. In the early years, another of the founder's relations, Dorcas Forester, ran an ice cream parlour here, so imagine how busy it would have been on a summer day. Later, tin-smith, Robert Brougham, called it his home and workshop; many area homes still have ceilings with his stamp. Still later, Beryl Henbry operated the local telephone switchboard out of this house, until Bell took it over in 1961.
